

FesTeLón: A Journey Through Time

Past Events: 2013 - 2025

About Us

FesTeLón: The Festival of Spanish Theatre, London, is an independent initiative designed to promote cultural exchange between Spanish theatre companies and London audiences.

It was founded in 2013 by Mariví Rodríguez Quiñones, a lecturer at King's College London, in response to the lack of professional Spanish theatre being performed in the UK.

Since its founding, the Festival has brought Spanish theatre companies, musicians and comedians to London every year, giving them the opportunity to reach new audiences. Many plays and concerts have had their UK premières at FesTeLón.

FesTeLón has a diverse audience; many of whom are neither native English nor Spanish speakers. FesTeLón uses surtitles during performances, which enables Spanish theatre companies to perform in their native language and means that everyone who is interested in Spanish theatre, regardless of their level of proficiency in the language, can enjoy the productions, including those who are hard of hearing.

In addition to the work produced on stage, FesTeLón has also launched a variety of offstage activities. For example, the theatre companies host a Q&A session following each production to encourage cultural exchange and understanding. The companies also all have the opportunity to give talks relating to their work. Previous talks have included topics such as the role of humour as a tool for social performance.

For the past 5 years, the Festival's founder and director has served as a jury member at Almagro OFF in Spain. Almagro OFF is part of the Almagro International Festival of Classical Theatre, a leading cultural event in the Spanish theatre calendar. In 2017, the Festival also launched an educational programme with Notre Dame School, Southwark, which has a high proportion of native Spanish speakers. Weekly theatre classes and writing workshops helped the students create plays reflecting their own experiences and the challenges of integrating into a new society. FesTeLón's commitment to cultural exchange begins on stage but extends far beyond it.

EL DICCIONARIO

MARÍA MOLINER: THE POWER OF WORDS
A PLAY BY Manuel CALZADA PÉREZ
IN SPANISH WITH ENGLISH SUBTITLES

Gabriel García Márquez said: "María Moliner wrote alone, in her own home, and with her own hand the most complete, the most useful and the most entertaining dictionary of the Spanish language. María Moliner tried to collect all words of life. In fact, what this fabulous woman embarked on was a race against life itself. In 1972 her nomination to the Royal Academy of Language was rejected: never before had a woman been accepted. She was pleased with this news, as she was terrified by her acceptance speech. "What can I say", she commented, "when all I have ever done in life is mending socks?"

"María Moliner is one of the most impressive and unknown personalities of 20th Century Spain: an intellectual determined to create a better world. This play shows that this woman also made the most difficult decision: she chose to be free." Manuel Calzada Pérez.

Directed by José Carlos PLAZA
winner of the Spanish National Theatre Award

Performed by Vicky PEÑA, Helio PEDREGAL and Lander IGLESIAS
winner of the Spanish National Theatre Award
four times winner of the Spanish MAX Award.

"A rare gem touched by the gods" El País
